Preface

This book represents the life’s work of Henry Freeman and spans some 50 years of an incredibly dedicated, tireless effort to trace the roots of his ancestors and their descendants. Henry was fortunate in starting his monumental work at an early age, when many members of older generations were still alive and could contribute their knowledge of past family members. He continued his work unabated throughout his lifetime.

Henry loved to travel to distant places, and on every journey to farflung places in virtually every continent some effort was made to contact a relative, explore a genealogical archive, or visit a town’s records of births, marriages and deaths to elicit information about members of the extended families. He visited cemeteries all over Europe and spoke or corresponded with archivists in remote towns where traces of ancestral residences came to light.

Henry documented the results of his researches in paper form. About five years ago his brother, Herbert, undertook the task of transferring the data to a genealogical database to make it computer accessible. It was a monumental task and would not have been completed without the active participation of Eva Carol Freeman Black, Henry’s daughter, and Susan Jessica Freeman, Herbert’s daughter. As Henry’s 80th birthday approached it was decided to extract the central part of the family tree – the part dealing directly with Henry’s parents and their respective families and issue the result in book form. This book is the result.

Dedication from Henry Freeman

To Tirza, my dear wife, who has been my patient companion in searching out my relatives around the globe and put up with me while I corresponded with, telephoned, or visited those who belonged to the many branches of my family tree.
Chapter 1

Creating the Family Trees

According to the title, this book deals with two family trees. In fact, it really deals with a forest of trees. If one is interested solely in the ancestors of one person, a single tree can properly represent all the ancestral individuals one can identify. However, such a tree would not include any uncles, aunts or cousins, however far removed. A similar problem exists with a descendant tree. What we consider a “family” is a much more complex structure – parents, grandparents, children, grandchildren, siblings, aunts, uncles, cousins, second spouses, etc. In many cases these are very much part of the family, both because of the influence they had on other members of the family and because many are still remembered with affection and esteem.

This book represents an extract from an enormous family forest assembled by Henry Freeman over some 50 years. With every marriage a new tree joined the forest. The total forest exists on a CD-ROM and can be viewed with a commercially available software package. This book contains a modest portion of what is on the disk, namely the descendants of the ancestors of Henry (and Herbert) Freeman.

The following page shows Henry Freeman’s ancestral tree. The tree extends backward in time and its branches terminate with individuals we have designated as primary ancestors. The tree’s first branching consists of two totally unrelated Friedmann families – that of Leo Friedmann, Henry’s father, and that of Johanna Friedmann, his mother. These are the two primary trees that are traced back.

Leo Friedmann’s family had its roots in Germany as far back as these could be traced. Johanna Friedmann’s family came from the part of Russia that is now Lithuania. For each primary ancestor, a descendant tree was then constructed and a separate chapter was allocated to it in this book. Such an approach can, of course, lead to enormous duplication. For example, Henry and his descendants would appear in every chapter. To avoid this unnecessary duplication, the descendant trees have been pruned at the point where a new tree joins an already established one. An appropriate reference is inserted at each such pruning point, indicating where the descendant path continues in another descendant tree. A comprehensive index appears at the end of the book.

Henry Freeman’s ancestral chart is shown on the next page. The primary ancestors are those for whom no previous ancestors could be identified and who would not otherwise be included as spouses. On the Leo Friedmann side they are Abraham Kusel Friedmann, Abraham Rach, Mordecai ben Salomon, and Mordecai ben Abraham. On the Johanna Friedmann side they are Tobias (Tuvey) Segal, Abraham Mapu, Hirschele Getz, Zvi Chanania, Rabbi Jessaia (Shloh) Hurwitz, and Salomon Merkes Segal. A separate chapter is allocated to the descendants of each. The entries in each chapter are numbered according to the Henry system, with the primary ancestor designated as 1 and each successive generation receiving an extra digit (or a letter where there are more than 9 children).

Chapter 2

Descendants of Abraham Kusel Friedmann

1. Abraham Kusel Friedmann was born about 1740.

11. Loew Friedmann was born in 1760. He was also known as Loew Hess (according to a tabulation by C. Kappner) and took on the name of "Friedmann". He resided in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany, and was a cattle merchant. He was married and had 5 sons and 3 daughters. Gela, his wife, was a daughter of Abraham Levi, who died in 1807. They were married in Autenhausen. Loew Hess had a residence permit granted in 1789 from the Tambach Cloister. He bought house No. 45 in Autenhausen in 1817. Loew died prior to 10 Jun 1828, according to the Tambach (Dr. Hausmann) records. One son, Hess Loew, born 1792, died 16 Oct 1848. Another son, Maier, born in 1802, bought house 45 from mother Gela in 1829. He married Eva. He died 11 Jan 1850. Eva took over house 45 in 1853. She died around 1902. House 45 was sold to Jeanette Oppenheimer in 1904.

12. Samuel Hess Friedmann was born in 1766. He married Buhla (Babette) Freund. He took on the name of 'Friedmann' and received a residence permit in 1799 from Klosteramt Tambach. He had two sons and one daughter per records received from C. Kappner & Tambach records in the Bamberg Archives (Tambach No. 1071). He bought house No. 41 in Autenhausen, now Lindenstrasse 17, on May 6, 1819 for 1600 guilder. The house was built in the 1600s. The records differ slightly from those in Meier Schüler's family tree. There is an inconsistency with respect to the birth date and also no record of the family was found in Hassfurt. Both were from Autenhausen. (His birth date of 1770 has been deduced from the Autenhausen death records in the Bamberg archives, where his age at his death in 1832 was given as 62.) He died on 21 January 1832. He was a teacher of religion in Hassfurt, Germany. He was also known as ‘Hesslein’ and ‘Jekuthiel’ (Hebrew name). Samuel Hess Friedmann and Buhla (Babette) Freund had the following children:

121. Hess Samuel Friedmann was born in 1802. Hess Samuel Friedmann took over house No. 41 from his father in 1829. His son Moses took it over by paying 2500 guilders in 1862. He received the residence permit ("Schutzaufnahme") in 1833 per Tambach-Autenhausen Matrnel IV, No. 155. He married Klara Rosenbach on 16 June 1834 in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. Klara died on 18 May 1847. He died on 10 August 1852. He was also known as ‘Hesslein.’ Klara Rosenbach died on 18 May 1847. Hess Samuel Friedmann and Klara Rosenbach had the following children: (See also entry 1215 for child from subsequent marriage.)

1211. Sara Friedmann was born in 1837.

1212. Moses Friedmann was born on 2 March 1839 in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany, according to information from the cemetery stone in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. He resided in house 41, between 1862 and 1901 in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. House 41 was taken over by Mina as the wife of Moses on 23 May 1902. Then on 28 Jan 1910 her children inherited this house. They sold it in 1917 to Otto Schwarz, whose daughter lived in it as of 1990. (It was sold for 9500 Marks). He died on 16 January 1901 in Coburg, Germany. He was a cattle merchant in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. Moses Friedmann was married to Mina Stern (daughter of Salomon Stern and Babette Friedlaender) on 24 January 1866 in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. The marriage was performed by Israel Schüler, a Rabbinats Kandidat (candidate for the rabbinate), from Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany. Mina Stern was born in 1844 in Ermeshausen, Bavaria, Germany. She died on 5 April 1909 in Autenhausen, Bavaria, Germany. Moses Friedmann and Mina Stern had the following children:

12121. Hesslein Friedmann was born on 14 November 1866. He died in 1900. He resided in New Orleans, LA (USA). He never married.

15. Rivka Segal was born in 1837 in Kovno. She died in 1912. She resided in Kovno, Lithuania.

151. Tobias died in 1916.

16. Samuel Koppel Friedmann was born in 1842 in Rosseini, Lithuania. He died on 2 March 1935 in Rosseini, Lithuania. According to Raseiniai local Rabbinate records, now at the Vilnius archives, Samuel Koppel Friedmann died of pneumonia on March 2, 1935 at age 93 and was buried on the following day. Leon Friedman, Henry's grandfather, thought his father was "about 96." He was also known as Samuel Koppel Segal. His name was changed for the following reason: At the time of Czar Nicolai I, Jewish children at the age of three were taken away from their parents, raised as Russians, and forced to spend 25 years in the Russian army. However, a family's first son was allowed to stay with his family. By giving each of his sons a different last name, Samuel's father was able to get around this requirement. He was the owner of a small candle factory. Later he ran a dry goods store in Rosseini. He resided in Rosseini, Lithuania (near Kovno). Note: Samuel was brought up in the house of Abraham Mapu, the novelist, because Samuel's parents had died.

Samuel Koppel Friedmann was married to Feige Rivka Getz (daughter of Lemme Rubin Getz and Pearl Maryl (Miriam) Chanania) in 1864. Feige Rivka Getz was born in 1844. She died in 1908. Samuel Koppel Friedmann and Feige Rivka Getz had the following children:

161. Leon Reuben Friedmann was born on 22 October 1865 in Rosseini, Lithuania. His Hebrew name was Yehuda Ruven. He immigrated in 1937 to Petach Tikva, Israel. He died on 2 September 1952 in Petach Tikva, Israel, of lung cancer at age 86. He is buried in a cemetery near Petach Tikva, Israel. He was a watchmaker, jeweler. He resided in Rosseini, Lithuania, in Nürnberg, Germany, in Frankfurt-am-Main, Germany, and in Petach Tikva, Israel. He was an early Zionist, going back to the late 1800s, and attended the first Zionist congress in Basel, Switzerland, in 1897. He made his first visit to the then Palestine in 1935 returning in 1937 to settle there permanently. During his youth in Lithuania he was a friend of Boris Schatz, the artist.

During his years in Frankfurt-am-Main he lived first at Tiergarten 18 and then at Schleiden Strasse 26, in an apartment house he owned and from which he derived his income. He was a dedicated member of the Börneplatz Synagogue, where at one time he was honored with the title of "Talmud Hacham" for his scholarly knowledge of the talmud and other Jewish writings.

While in Petach Tikva (1937 - 1952) he lived at 15 (later renumbered 18) Pica Street. He helped found the German Synagogue in Petach Tikva. In early 1948 he wrote a letter to Ha'Aretz, then a Palestine newspaper, arguing that the name of the new state then contemplated to be formed be called simply "Israel", and not Medinat Israel or anything else. A local reporter some years concluded from this that Leon Friedmann of Petach Tikva should get the credit for suggesting the name Israel bears today. --- Copies of both the letter by Leon Friedmann as well as the reporter's note are available in the supporting literature to this family tree.

Leon Reuben Friedmann was married to Hedwig Hurwitz (daughter of Bernhard Lippmann Hurwitz and Sara Segal) in 1891. Hedwig Hurwitz was born on 25 February 1862 in Kovno, Lithuania. She died in 1908. Samuel Koppel Friedmann and Feige Rivka Getz had the following children:

Leon Friedman, Henry's grandfather, thought his father was "about 96." He was also known as Samuel Koppel Segal. Name changed for the following reason: At the time of Czar Nicolai I, Jewish children at the age of three were taken away from their parents, raised as Russians, and forced to spend 25 years in the Russian army. However, a family's first son was allowed to stay with his family. By giving each of his sons a different last name, Samuel's father was able to get around this requirement. He was an owner of a small candle factory. Later he ran a dry goods store in Rosseini. He resided in Rosseini, Lithuania (near Kovno). Note: Samuel was brought up in the house of Abraham Mapu, the novelist, because Samuel's parents had died.

Chapter 10

Descendants of Rabbi Jessaia (Shloh) Hurwitz

1. Rabbi Jessaia (Shloh) Hurwitz was born in 1570. He is the author of Shne Luchat Habrit (Two tablets of the covenant), published in 1623. It is from the title of this work that his nickname “Shloh” is derived. He died in 1630 in Tiberias, Israel. He is buried in the cemetery where Maimonides is also buried, in Tiberias. He was also known as Shloh and was a famous kabbalist and rabbi. He was also known as Jesaia ben Abraham Halevi. He resided in Posen, Frankfurt-am-Main, Prague, and Tiberias. His son was Shabetai Shtele (1590-1660).

A family tradition has been that the Hurwitz side is descended from Jessaia Hurwitz (Shloh) (ben Abraham) who was born in 1570 and died in 1630.

11. (multiple no. of generations of) Hurwitz The name Hurwitz is derived from the Bohemian city of Horovice.

111. Baruch Hurwitz was a rabbi and resided in Salant, Kovno, Lithuania. He died young. His Hebrew name was Baruch Halevi. The name ‘Hurwitz’ is believed derived from the Bohemian city of Horowitz, now called Horowice; it is midway between Pilsen and Prague. A book entitled Geschichte der Familie Horowitz by Bernard Friedberg (2nd ed. Antwerp, 1928) (in Hebrew) is available in the Jewish Division of the New York Public Library, 42nd St., New York. Recha Friedmann checked this book in 1955; Henry Freeman also did so and both found no reference to a “Baruch”, “Bernard”, or “Baer Lippe”. This book thus does not cover this side of the Hurwitz family, although it does go back to the “Shloh” (Jessaia Hurwitz, b. 1570).

Note: Since there is no letter ‘H’ in Russian, the name was usually written "Gourwich”.

The Hurwitz family are Levites.

Baruch Hurwitz and his wife (name unknown) had the following children:

1111. Bernhard Lippmann Hurwitz was born in 1835 in Kovno, Lithuania. He died on 20 November 1921 in Dresden, Germany. His grave is in the Jewish cemetery in Dresden, Germany, Sect. MN14, Fiedlerstrasse 3. He founded the cigarette factory "Monopol” in Dresden. He had patents to his name regarding cigarette manufacturing and packaging. He was also known as Baer Lippe, and in Hebrew as Dov Baer Yom Tov ben Baruch Halevi. He was considered the first Talmud Hacham in Dresden, per Dr. J. Burg (later an Interior Minister in Israel, who knew him from Dresden.)

Bernhard and his son Sally were co-owners of the cigarette manufacturing business "Bernhard L. Hurwitz”, first at Zoellner-strasse 36, then at Blasewitzerstr. 68. (Per Dresden archives). They had 4 male and 25 female employees.

Bernhard Lippmann Hurwitz was married to Sara Segal (daughter of Salomon Merkes Segal and Lea Greengard). Sara Segal was born in 1835 in Kovno, Lithuania. She died on 27 August 1915 in Dresden, Germany. She resided in Kovno, Lithuania and in Dresden, Germany. Bernhard Lippmann Hurwitz and Sara Segal had the following children:
